Lady Gay Spanker, Mr. E. Booth as Dazzle, Mr. T. D. Green as Sir Harcourt, Mrs. Booth as Graco Harkaway, Mr. Anderson as Max, Mr. Thompson as Polly Spanker, and Mr. Rand as Charles Courtly. When Mrs. Sinclair entered as Lady Gay Spanker, the Chief Enstorer, Mr. Duane, arose in the parquette and proposed three cheers for that lady, and the cheers were given with hearty good will by the audience. At the end of the set Mrs. Sinclair was called before the curtain, and, when the applause had subsided, addressed the audience as Iadies and Gentlemen—Permit me to express to you my deep and heartfelt gratification at beholding the brilliant assemblage which graces these walls to night—and to express it to you, not only on my own behalf, but on that of the ladies and gentlemen who have assisted at our representation—and I am requested likewise to add, in the name of the members of the Fire Department, for the generous manner in which the citizens of San Francisco have responded to our call in aid of the charitable endeavors of that noble body of men to whom we are indebted for the safety of our lives and property, and whom all Californians delight to honor.

Miss Featherstone has made rather a hit at Drury Lane, in the character of Midas. A new farce, called "My Cook and my Housekeeper, "Is underlined. There was announced under the patronage of royalty, a crowd of duchesses, and the Lord Mayor and aldermen, a per-Sermance of "Virginius," in aid of a fund for the sup-port of the wives and children of the British soldiers. Brooke plays gratuitously, and several vocalists (Favanti, with Misses Poole, Featherstone, Cicely Nott, and others) will assist on the same terms.

EXHIBITION OF THE NATIONAL ACADEMY.

The twenty-ninth exhibition of the National Academ of Design is now open at the Academy's galleries, Broadway, near Bond street. The unfavorable weather since the opening, has prevented many ladies from attending, but we all hope for better things this week. The sun did not condescend to give us his light during the first three days of the exhibition, and many of the pictures failed to receive the due meed of praise on account of this fact.

There are three hundred and ninety-eight pictures on exhibition, including several specimens of miniature painting and a dozen or so of crayon drawings. Among all these works of art there are many to admire and but few to condemn. The number of por-twaits of unknown ladies and gentlemen is large, and some of them display great talent on the part of the artist, though they do not give evidence of good taste on the part of the persons painted. This last remark does not,

In our opinion, Elliott leads the portrait painters; and bough he has many imitators, none of them approxi-te him in the demonstrate of the approxipertrait, and ever and anon be carried away by the idea that it is really the man, and not the "counterfeit presentment," which entrances you. What a pity it is that such genius should be wasted in immortalizing gentlemen with highly mottled countenances, and ladies with seraggy necks, little pig-like eyes and crooked asses! There are some portraits of handsome men in the exhibition, but hardly one of a really pretty woman. Some noted individuals also figure on the canyans. There is Bishop Wainwright in full canyans. on the canvass. There is Bishop Wainwright in full caonicals, (very good, although mexpressive,) by Hicks; here is Colonel Ward Burnett, full length, (pretty fair, out why didn't the artist spell the names of the battles an the pillar correctly?—the Colonel looks more like pray-ing than rejoicing, too,) by Shegogue; H. W. Beecher, by Hicks—a good portrait; George T. Trumble, (Hicks.) a Sail length, with a background where a number of urchins, all dressed in red, are unnecessarily impaling themselve agen the sharp points of an iron fence. Boyle has a beautiful cabinet portrait of George De Forest, Esq., a handsome man, with his good points well brought out. Altogether, there are one hundred and seventy-eight portests. It is ludicrous sometimes to see a pert young lady's disappointment, and hear her say "Pshaw!" when she has fallen in love with a handsome man's portrait, and on referring to the catalogue finds the interesting though rather vague announcement that it is the "Pertrait of a gentleman." If "gentlemen" overcome their modesty sufficiently to put their faces on exhibition, they should certainly allow their names to figure in the catalogue.

their modesty sufficiently to put their faces on exhibition, they should certainly allow their names to figure in the catalogue.

Durand, Cropsey, Gignoux and Kensett lead the land-reape painters. "On the Hudson," by Gignoux, is a beautiful thing; there is a softness and delicacy of coloring about it which makes it indescribably pleasing. It is the property of Haron Rothschild. Huntington's "Good Samaritan" attracts much attention. The painting is of large size, containing six or eight life-size figures; the expression of the faces, especially that of him who went down to Jeriche and fell among thieves, is excellent. This picture is the property of M. O. Roberts. We were delighted with a beautiful little thing by Hicks—the "Gypsey girl." There is a great deal of arch slyness in the face. En passant, we may say, of those several wooden looking groups of juveniles from various hands, we are sorry that they are allowed upon the walls. Artists seldom catch the lively, gladsome, frolicking spirit of childhood. The juveniles always seem to have been in terture while they were sitting.

Mr. Richards has two works which seem to challenge criticism. The best is "The Dream of Happy Hunting Greunds," A North American sleeps placidly upon a projecting rock. Below him is a village supposed to be glowing with verdure, but of course so deeplyshaded that one finits it difficult to ascertain what it is, while above are transcendent clouds pouring down upon the dreamer a flood of light. The effect of the light is pretting manged. The ether is "Alastor, or the Spirit of Solitude," representing Stelley's here enjoying his promenade "through the windings of his dell." The idea is good, but the work locks vigor and finish.

'Cropsey gives us as heautiful marine view—"The Coast of Genoa." Spirit, lightness, vividness and naturalnes of celoring are the striking points, while the whole work displays the beld and vigorous hand of a master. "Strawberrying." by Durand, a capitally painted landware; the perspective view through the trees i the is spirited.

"A Lake Scene" (Kensett.) "Hay Making" (Durand),

"Italian Woman" [capital] (Portels), "Magdalen" (Ransom), and several other paintings, display a high order of conius.

There are a few animal paintings, but none which eserve particular notice.

Personal Intelligence.

The Florence correspondence of the Newark Advertiser

The Florence correspondence of the Newark Advertiser of the 28th ult. says:—

But the incident of the carnival, which has been the talk of the town for some days, is the bal costume at the palace of Frince Lemidolf, a rich Slave of Russia, and the repudiated husband of the Princess Mathide, (a daughter of Jorome Benaparte,) who now figures at Paris. His palace is one of the most samptuous in Europe, and its splendid apartments and grounds were all thrown open for the entertainment of Wednesday evening, which probably exceeded in extravgance and show any carousal of our day. Nearly all the courts and countries of the world, and the most giddy periods of courtly frivolity, from Solamon to Louis Quartorze, were represented in the pictureague spectacle. America was gracefully represented by Mrs. Europh, of New York, in the rich costume of an Indian princess, and the United States by a grand-daughter of the late tileon Lee, clothed in proprintely in the stars and stripes, and bearing the E. Plarious Unamobile representation. It is well understood that some of the tiled quests, who have more love of show than means to include it, were obliged to incur inconvenient debts in order to equip themselves for the occasion, for the cost mean were generally, i understand, of the coaffest description. Euch is one phase of Hallan life. Fortunated tilles of an Italian carnival in the United States.

Dr. Morse's Invigorating Elixir or Cordial'—There was a time when people were made to believe that certain medicines had a direct influence upon the blood. The fallacy has been exploded. It is new well known that it is only through its elements, the chyle and the secretions, that the character of the vital finid can be changed. Morse's invigorating elixir purifies the sangulferous current, by purifying the secretions, and regulating the action of the stomach, the liver, and the howeis. It is an alterative and invigorant, and the grand secret of its almost miracelous curse consists in its giving tone to the stomach, bringing the functions of every disordered organity to the standard of healthful action, imparting to the entry to the standard of healthful action, imparting to the entry to the standard of healthful action, imparting to the entry to the standard of healthful action, imparting to the entry to the standard of the standard of healthful action, imparting to the entry to the sandard or yetsen, a solf-enataining power, and rondering it capable for the standard of a property of the secretion of the standard of the standard of healthful action, imparting to it forms and consequences, for torpor or dyspepsia in, all the forms and consequences, for torpor or dyspepsia in, all the forms and consequences, for torpor, and pentions, and excitaments which constituted as apparation as pensions, and excitaments which constitution seems broken or nervous disease.
